Truly great design is born from the most exacting details and excellent materials. That is why discerning homeowners and savvy design and build pros throughout Chicagoland make Precision Stone Design their stone experts of choice. “Our team of surface sourcing and fabrication professionals work in close collaboration with homeowners to help achieve their visions through stone,” says Gina Saran, President of Precision Stone Design. “We also love working with the design community, helping builders, contractors and interior designers execute their most important projects.” Precision Stone Design is also known for their ability to fulfill even the most challenging custom requests. Saran explains, “From countertops to shower rooms, custom furniture pieces and so much more, we love a challenge and pride ourselves on bringing beauty, function, durability and timeless style to interior and exterior spaces.”

Set In Stone

When asked to share some of their clients' must-have materials and design elements, Saran shares, “With materials, we’re seeing increasing requests for natural stone and porcelain. Along with being beautiful and sustainable, natural stones like quartzite, marble and granite offer unique selection options that make any space feel truly one-of-a-kind, while porcelain can provide the look of marble and other natural stones without the maintenance requirements. When it comes to design elements, integrated sinks are quite popular. Made from the same material as your countertops, they add seamless sophistication to any kitchen, bathroom or bar. Also, range hoods wrapped in the same stone used for countertops and backsplashes create a dramatic effect.”

Small Wonder

“Changing out a countertop in an existing space is a small renovation project that will have a huge impact,” Saran says. “Aside from the kitchen or bathroom, some other great spaces to do this are in a laundry room, mudroom or walk-in closet, especially when it has a central island.”
